GREAT FALLS HIGH SCHOOL
Great Falls, South Carolina

FOREWORD

Now and in the days to come we hope that in this 1963 Catawban you will find poignant reminders of happy days. You may laugh at some of them, wonder at others, but it is our hope that each of you will find here the source of some inescapable memory.

We have tried to capture the evidences of growth in our lives here at Great Falls High and record them in pictures and words.

All phases of our lives today are parts of symbols. Love, devotion, gratitude, and reward are symbols having varied forms and meanings. As the pages are scanned in years to come, the symbols used here will bring recollections of friends and of hours spent in work and play.

Our wish is that with the passing of time each symbol will have a deeper and more personal meaning to every student.

A senior eyes the symbols of school life and envisions the culmination of twelve years' struggle.

ALMA MATER

With a song and a cheer let us sing,
To the dearest of all alma maters;
Fortune and truth may she have,
Prosperity, always—
Forget her? No, never, no ne'er
She will always live on in our mem'ry.
Here's to our dear Great Falls High,
The greatest, grandest, best of all,
OUR ALMA MATER.

Dedicated To Parents

We honor all parents of Great Falls High School students, but especially those of the senior class. You have provided individual help and instruction, along with cooperative aid to both school and community. Without swerving you have loved us since childhood, had faith in our youth, and given us freely of your store of wisdom. Always you have inspired us to strive for maximum achievement in spiritual, physical, mental, and social growth.

Parents face many odds to encourage students. The weather, as well as the opponents, wrought havoc with the Red Devils at the Homecoming game.

Parent-Teacher planning committee serves the school in an unpublicized but always efficient manner.

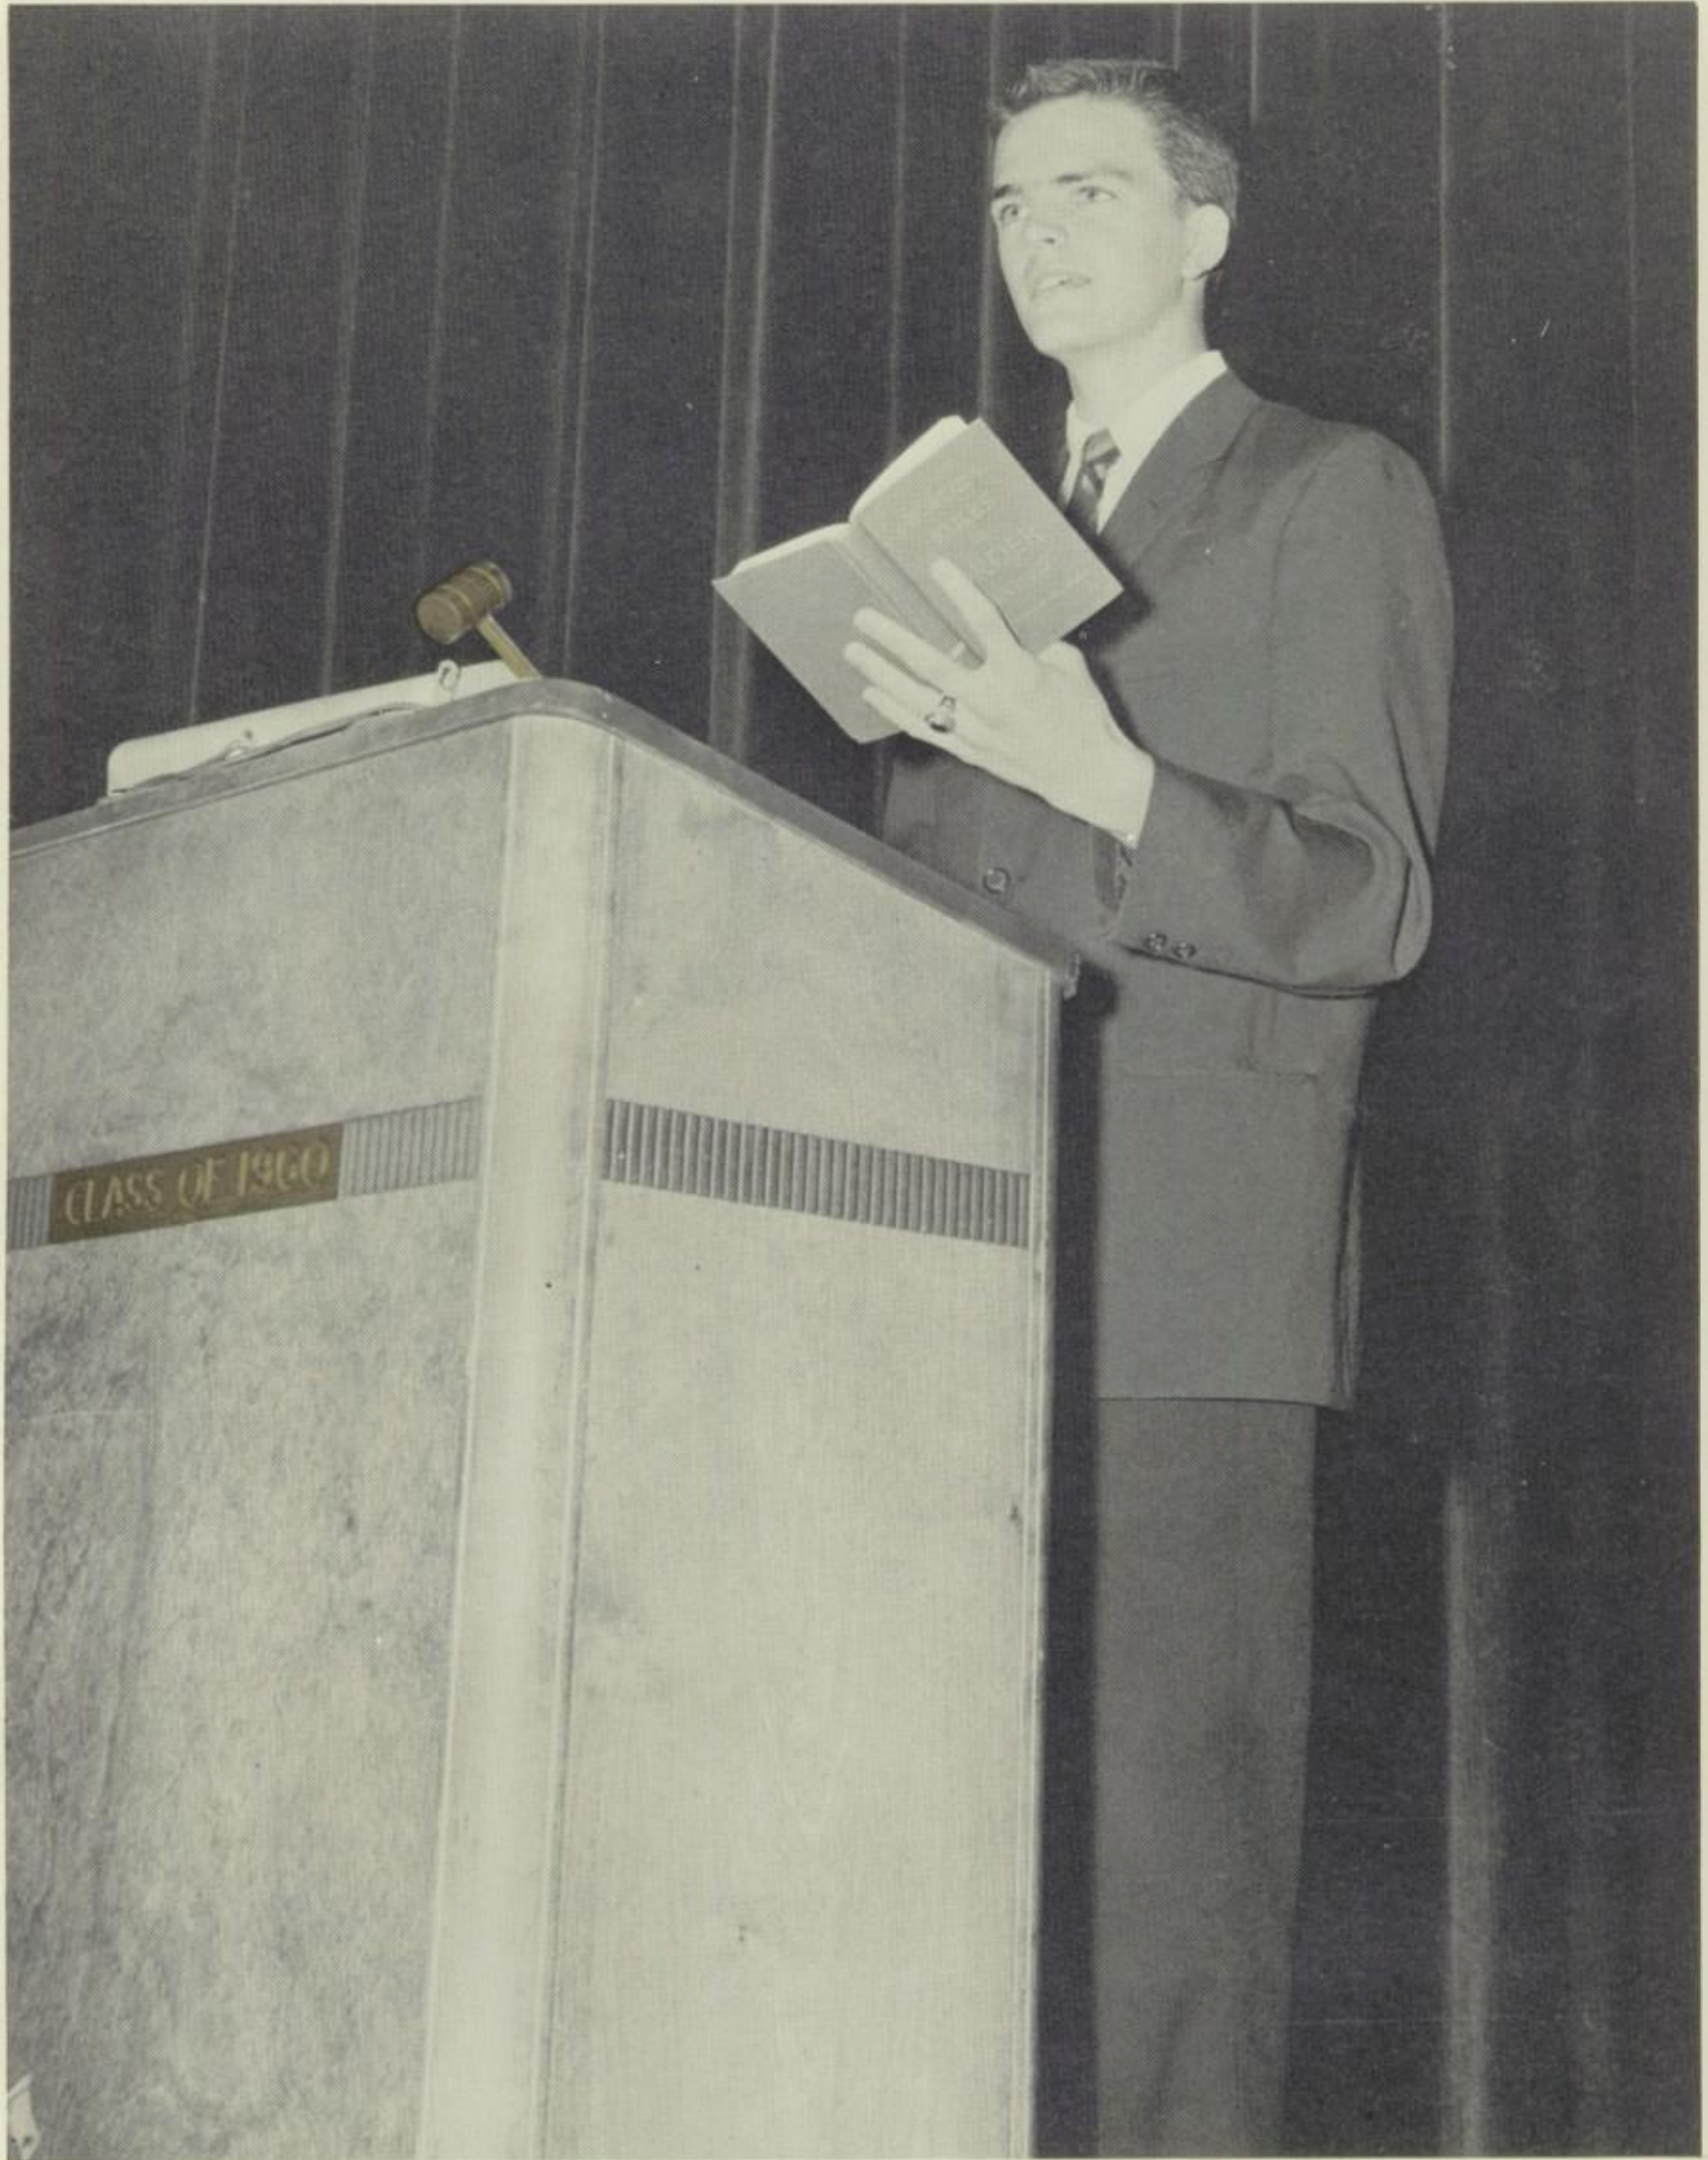

Who Nurture Our Growth

We manage to take time out for other important activities. Moments in church give added meaning to our lives. Parents share not only Sunday worship experiences but also daily activities as well. Scout Mack Cloninger has spent many hours achieving his God and Country Award which his mother is inspecting here.

Student Council committee aided by Mrs. Brown, council sponsor, and Mr. Ellis L. Oakes, minister chairman from the Great Falls Ministers Association, make interesting plans for annual Religious Emphasis week. Each spring the Student Council sponsors this event rewarding to both students and faculty.

Leadership Strengthened By Council

Gene Wade wields gavel with dignity and authority as he calls the student body to order.

Seniors Rhetta Jones and Jim Finley gleefully show juniors Larry Poston and Judy Lawing the designs of the new Great Falls High School ring.

Class Projects Promote Unity

Scholarship futhered By Library

Tim Hammond uses reference books to glean extra information to become a well-informed student. The library the heart of the school, is in constant use.

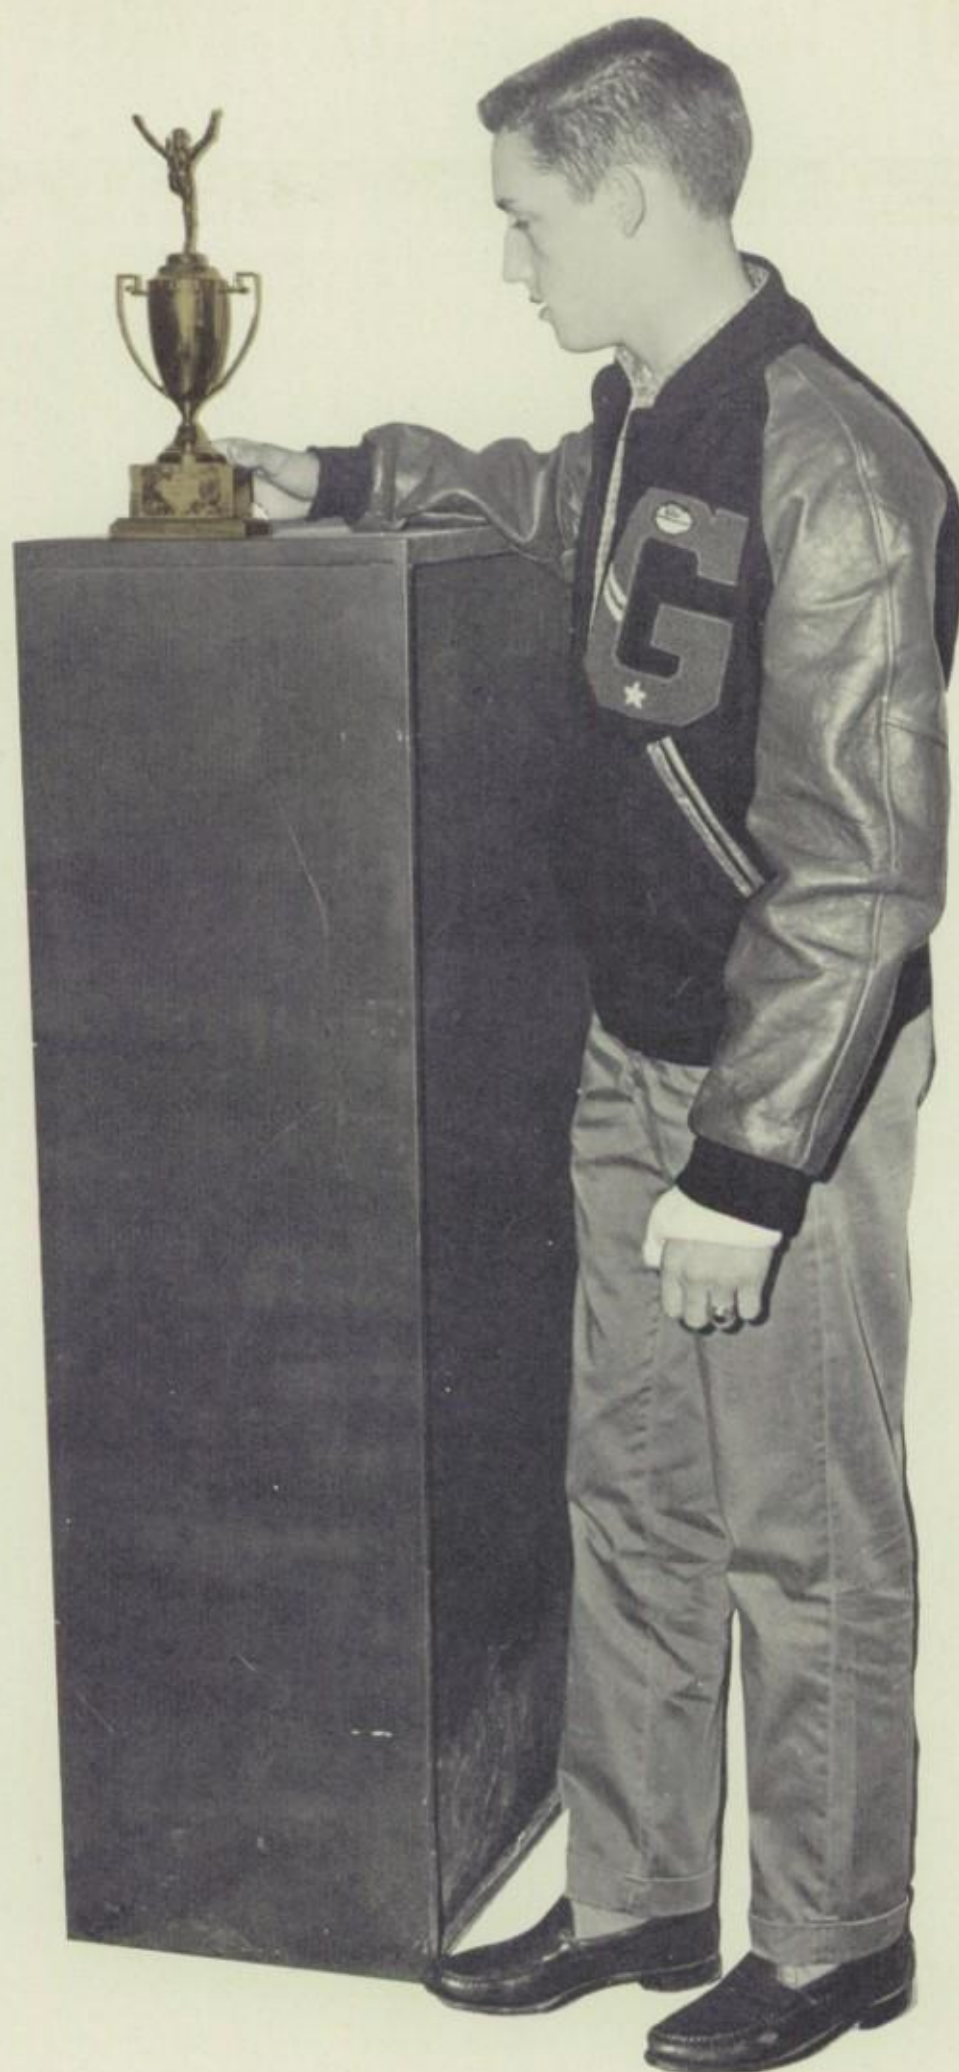

Roger Padgett, Shirley Suttle, Joyce Plyler, Gene Wade, and Linda Ann Jordan are resplendent in the red satin ribbons which indicate top scholastic achievement.

Marshal Selection Reflects Honor

Beauty Is Radiant And Happy

Nancy Gilliam and Shirley Suttle assist Jane Bradley with her tiara as Elaine Bell approvingly watches.

Mike Crosby admires the Gibson trophy awarded to him for the second year as most valuable player in the annual Homecoming game.

Prowess Testifies Physical fitness

Achievement And Attainment Are Vital

Youth Center officers, Great Falls High students, relax on front steps of beautiful building donated by our community. The Youth Center is sponsored by the Community Council, who appoints a committee of interested parents to direct the affairs of the year-round youth program. Mrs. Doyle Allen serves as director. Linda Ann Jordan, President. Mike Horton, Vice-President. Larry Gibson, Secretary-Treasurer.

Administration

New courses, Adult Living and Comprehensive Reading, are being discussed by Miss Campbell, Mr. Stutts, Mr. Crolley, and Mrs. Gladden.

G.f.H. Has Capable Administrators

"What form do they want completed now? Planning a new school building can be a headache." Principal Robert Stutts and Superintendent Donald Crolley are adequate for the job.

Mr. and Mrs. Crolley, surrounded by faculty and trustees, seem intrigued by Junior-Senior entertainers.

School is not all planning. Social life is highlighted with Junior-Senior. Mr. Stutts waltzes "Miss Mo" around the floor.

Aided By Skilled Faculty

Mr. Starnes counsels students, advises seniors, and administers the numerous tests required of the student body.

Mr. H. C. Starnes, Jr.
B.S. Presbyterian College
M.A. University of South Carolina
Head Coach and Guidance

Mr. Starnes explains the intricacies of a vocational aptitude test to one of the many students.

Mrs. Maurice Brown has a prime concern for the more than 5000 volume library and the 600 member student body. To foster friendship between the two is sometimes difficult but it is a responsibility she willingly and energetically assumes. Her cultured mind, warm smile, and generous friendship reach beyond bookshelves to faculty, student body and community.

Mrs. Maurice Brown
A.B. University of South Carolina
Librarian
Sponsors Library Club

When was this picture snapped? It couldn't have been during school, for Mrs. Brown is always surrounded by eager readers.

Faculty channel knowledge by systematic methods through well organized departments and programs to meet student needs and interests now and in the future.

Mrs. Gladden directs a seventh grade reading improvement class in which students are taught skills important to reading growth.

Reading Improvement is required for all seventh graders.

English and Language Arts

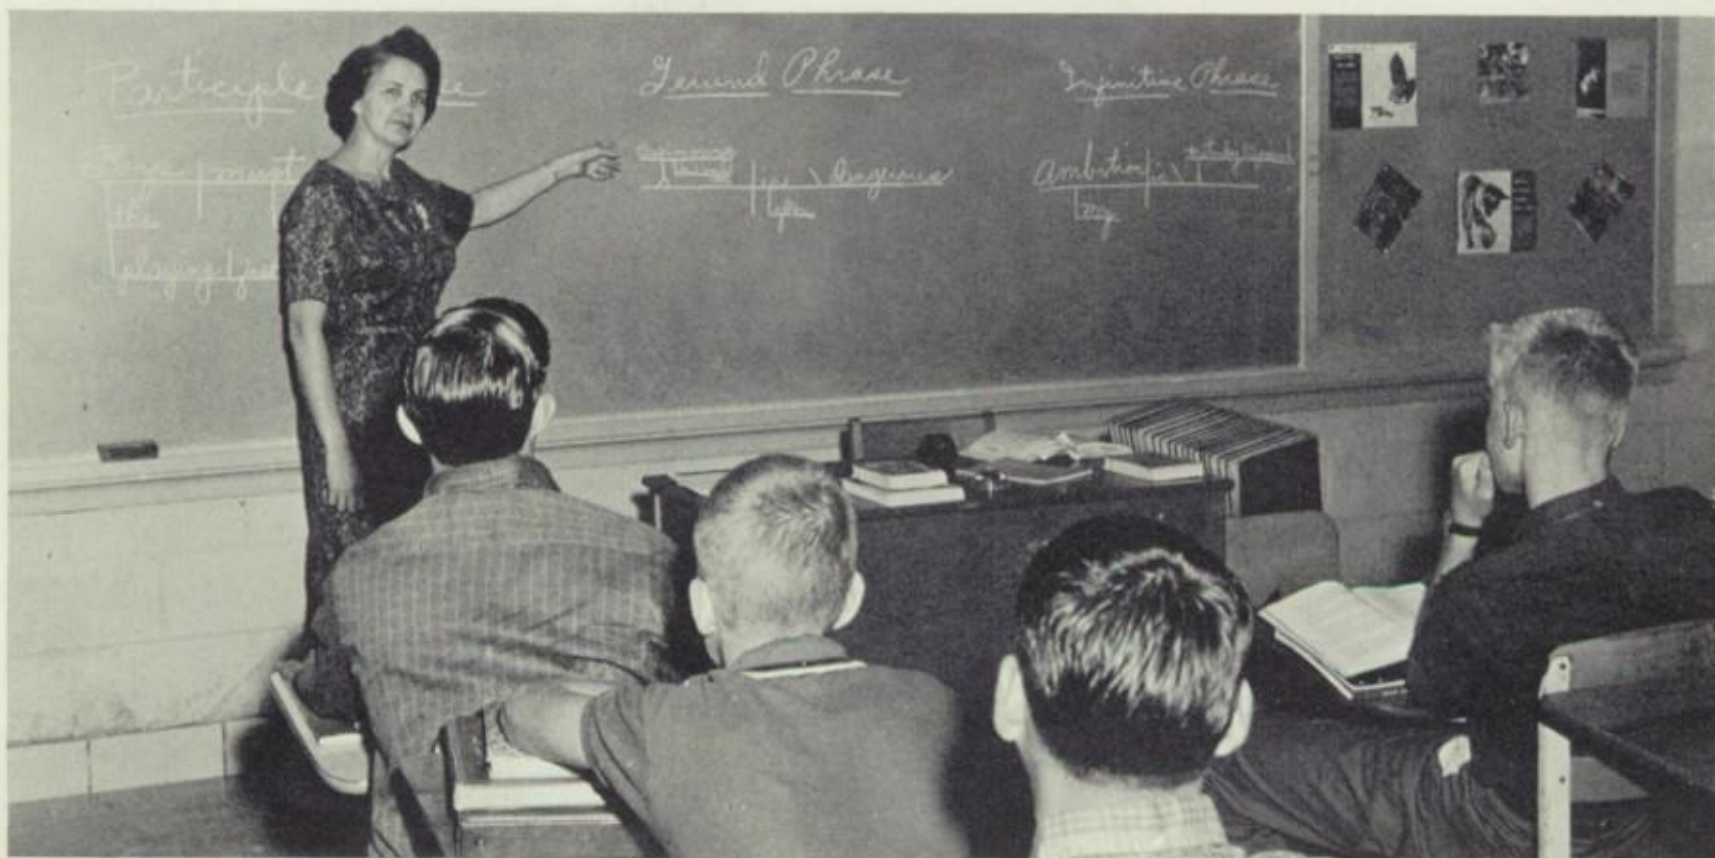

Mrs. Wyman Gladden
A.B. University of South Carolina
Eighth English and Reading

Mr. Harry Abernathy
B.S. Appalachian
State Teachers
Ninth English and Civics

Mr. Abernathy shares with his students the thrill of adventure stories as they trace the history of flight. They enjoy stories of early experiments and more recent conquests of space.

Each department and teacher contributes in a vital way to student life and achievement. Constantly reviewed methods and purposes increase intellectual and social growth of teacher and student.

An extensive reading program is essential to senior high students.

Mrs. Ellis L. Oaks is always busy. She teaches four periods of English, grades endless papers, guides young people's interdenominational group. Here she steers a freshman class through the perplexities of language mechanics as she explains diagramming verbals.

Are Basic Requirements

Mrs. Ellis Oaks
A.B. Winthrop College
English
Co-sponsors Catawban

Mrs. Ernest Propst, Jr.
A.B. East Carolina
Teachers College
English and Bookkeeping
Co-sponsors Catawban

English is always formal but not the class! Mrs. Propst seeks constantly for varied ways of presenting detailed study of literature, theme writing, fundamentals of grammar and composition, and practice in research for themes.

Who else has a class so large as to need the cafeteria! Spanish Club is sponsored by Mr. Azouri.

Mr. George Azouri
College of St. Louis
Saida, Lebanon
French and Spanish

Using Latin is always advisable here. Miss Dunlap sponsors Latin Club.

Miss Bertha Dunlap

Foreign Languages Challenge Minds

Shorthand students strive for proficiency.

Mrs. Rawlinson directs first-year typists.

Bookkeeping requires concentration.

Mrs. Rawlinson sets high standards for the commerce department and her students. Records and tapes are used to help shorthand students develop in taking dictation while records are used to promote speed and accuracy in typing classes.

Mrs. J. M. Rawlinson
B.S. Winthrop
Co-sponsors Red Devil
and Junior Class

Business Leaders Train for Tomorrow

Physical Education Tests Co-ordination

Mr. Gladden directs exercises for this class in physical education. All eighth graders are enrolled in the physical program this year. Mr. Gladden gives instruction in soccer, flag ball, basketball, relay races, volley ball, and weight lifting. Safety, health, first aid, and films are also included in the course. Uniforms of school colors look wonderful!

Mrs. Bankhead puts her girls through the paces! Included in the girls' program are relay races, archery, deck tennis, basketball, folk dances, volley ball, badminton, softball, and stunt tumbling. Good health habits are stressed to all students, urging them to keep physically fit bodies as well as alert minds.

Mr. Wyman Gladden

Co-sponsors Junior Class

Mrs. James Bankhead
B.S. Winthrop
Physical Education and Distriutive Education
Sponsors D.E. Club

Scientific Method of Inquiry is expounded by science teachers. General science, biology, chemistry, and physiscience are courses offered, giving to the student a chance to learn, progress, and experiment with own ideas . . . some seem demolition specialists.

But you still haven't learned the steps in the scientific method!

Mrs. Starnes teaches physical science to selected freshmen.

for Teachers
Mathematics

Sophomores, now well acquainted with Temac books after using them for freshman algebra, struggle with geometric theorems under Mr. Ferguson's watchful eye.

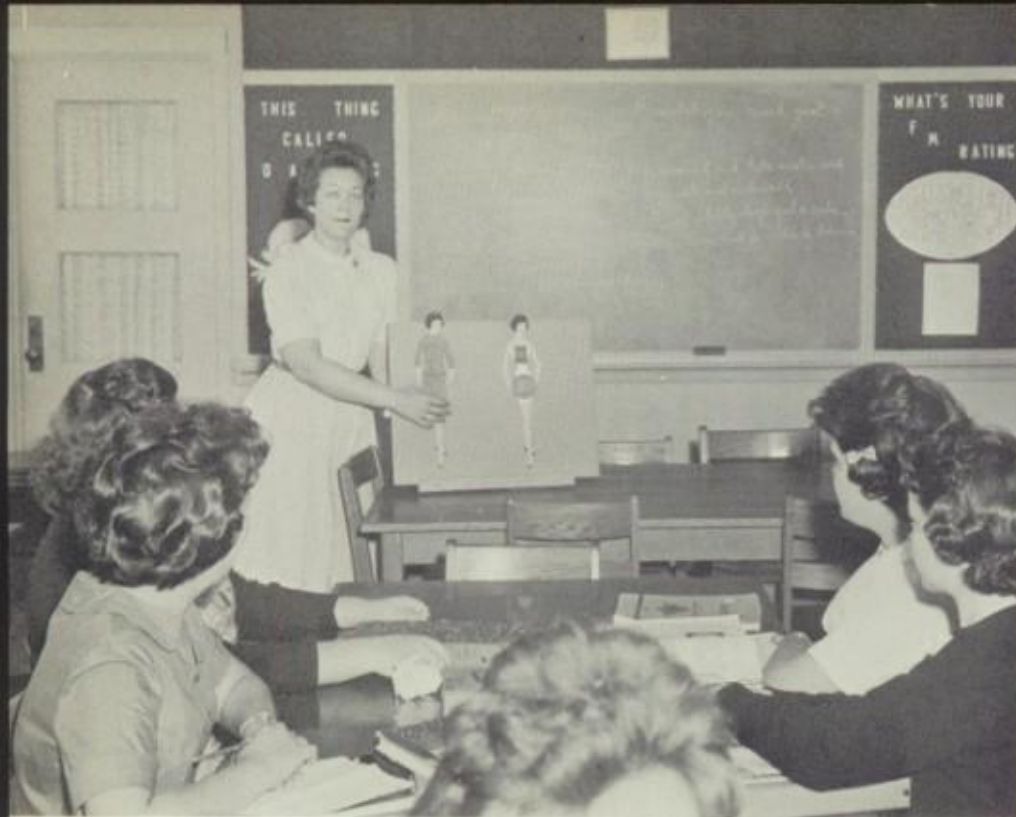

Mathematics Stresses Sound Reasoning

Miss Kitty Lee Steele prods eighth-graders into alertness as she delves into fractions.

Seventh grade math students beware! Mrs. D. C. Robertson looks busy!

Miss Doris Jo Campbell instructs home economics girls in dress styles suited to different types of figures.

The home economics department seeks to improve personal, family and community living. Miss Campbell chaperones girls to F.H.A. Camp each summer. During the school year, she conducts adult classes in sewing, tailoring, and upholstering.

Adult living, most recent addition to the curriculum, stresses family relationships and responsibilities of homemaking.

Co-sponsors T. & I.

Students in diversified occupations class read the T and I national publication to gain information about occupations.

This project paid off! The scrapbook showing the school news coverage by the local newspaper, The Great Falls Reporter, won the School Bell Award in the state.

Miss Kate Johnson
A.B. Asheville Teachers College
Seventh Grade History
Sponsors Stamp and Coin Club

Miss Kate Johnson keeps her seventh graders abreast of world events with the use of map studies, Junior Scholastic Magazines, and a weekly study of The Charlotte Observer.

Mrs. Fowler uses projector, films, and reports to help students re-live historic events.

Mr. Richard Seastrunk
A.B. Newberry College
Math & History

Mr. Moskos seems pleased with the results of his class's discussion in psychology.

Mr. Seastrunk's American history class of eighth graders reluctantly accept another of his daily tests.

Music is offered to those who are talented, and to those who are willing to labor in order to learn. Individual lives and community are thereby enriched by this cultural influence.

Mr. Herbert Gilliam
A.B. Newberry College
Band and Chorus Director

For the fourth consecutive year, Great Falls has had a representative in All-State Band. Mr. Herbert Gilliam, band director, discusses plans with Charles Haynes, John Gambrell, Sandra Pearsall, and Glenn Brannen, all of whom tried out for All-State. Mr. Gilliam also directs Senior Chorus.

Education is a family affair at Great Falls High. The three husband-wife teams on the faculty and administration are Mr. and Mrs. Wyman Gladden, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Seastrunk, and Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Starnes.

Mr. Isenberg struggles in vain to wipe the sleep from his eyes over-tired from a night of correcting papers. Mr. Abernathy looks on sympathetically while resting before beginning a hard day of teaching. Mr. Stutts signs one of the approximately one hundred excuses that come in each morning while Ann Barton waits patiently.

Miss Emily West, secretary to Mr. Crolley, has the devotion of every teacher—especially on pay day!

At almost any hour of the day or night Mr. Crolley may be found consulting with trustees, studying plans for the new building, or conferring with teachers or students.

Mr. Donald Crolley
A.B. Newberry College
M.A. University of South Carolina

Great Falls School wheels are well-oiled with the efforts of two loyal and efficient administrators. Their chief concern is that the students are well-educated in factual knowledge and basic principles. Thus they are enabled to make wise decisions.

Mr. R. P. Stutts
A.B. Presbyterian College
M.A. University of South Carolina

Dr. Cecil I. Tucker, Director of Field Services for S. C., was employed by Chester County to survey the Great Falls area. Result? A new senior high building, desperately needed, is to be constructed soon.

Principal R. P. Stutts remembers 1962-63 as the year of meetings! He represented SCEA and Chester County in Washington to study teacher salaries and in Miami to study new science curriculum.

Mrs. Seastrunk, secretary to Mr. Stutts, has a busy day opening mail, answering the telephone, and writing receipts.

Mrs. Marvin Bankhead assists Mrs. Fowler with U.S. History class, supervises study halls, and aids with secretarial work in the elementary school.

Mrs. L. A. Jordan, cafeteria manager, devotes much time and effort to the planning of meals for school children. During the year, Mrs. Jordan served on the advisory committee for planning new methods of instruction for home economics. Sexton Quality Foods Company selected Mrs. Jordan's recipe as one of two recipes chosen from South Carolina to be included in their recipe books for schools and camps.

"Busy Betas" are a familiar sight around Great Falls High School. These honor students are engaged in many activities such as selling doughnuts, sponsoring the Teachers Talent Program, remembering with toys and food a needy family at Christmas, and giving the teachers a doughnut party. The students are rewarded with a week end at the Beta Club Convention in February.

I can't believe I really made it!

Growth is continuous, unconscious, mystic, yet everlasting. The magic symbols that have induced us to pray, work, laugh, and learn have universal appeal.

With tomorrow comes another day, another year, with expanding concepts. The common task which confronts our association of fellow learners is to give a special quality to education in our learning community.

Wall to wall teen-agers . . . ready for another year!

"The creed you really believe in is spoken, not by your lips, but by your life."
